LATEST UPDATE

Crude prices trading below 50 & 20-day SMA suggesting weakness in prices

Prices had rallied in 5 waves and after that the correction which we saw can be termed as wave a and now prices could have a pullback in wave b towards 38.2 retracements at 67.10, 50 percent is at 68.2 and 61.8 percent is at 69.3

Oil prices rose by around 1 percent on Friday, lifted by uncertainty over whether OPEC would manage to agree on a production increase at a meeting in Vienna later in the day.

WTI Crude was at USD 66.35 a barrel. After weeks of back-and-forth sparring, Saudi Arabia and Russia have reportedly reached a preliminary deal to boost crude supply by 1 million barrels per day but other OPEC members including Iran have opposed this.

Some countries are unable to ramp up capacity to such an extent, so the actual increase may amount to more modest 600k barrels per day. A net increase of 600-800k barrels per day is probably priced in already and the announcement of such a modest boost may even trigger a relief rally.

OPEC agreed on Friday to raise oil production by around 1 million barrels per day from July for the group and its allies. The output gain is nominal. The real increase will be smaller because several countries that recently under produced oil will struggle to return to full quotas while other producers will not be allowed to fill the gap.

LATEST UPDATE

Dollar woes! Rupee may hit all-time low if it breaks 68.10/$

Technically, 66.70 is an important support. Break of 68.10 would be essential for momentum to build upon the upside and this time around that could possibly lead to a new all-time low for the rupee against the US dollar,

Several recent global and domestic developments have led investors to take some risk off the table but they have not hit the panic button yet.

The flight of interest-rate sensitive flows has spooked debt and currency markets but equities have been fairly resilient so far, especially the benchmark indices.

Gradual withdrawal of USD liquidity and rate hikes by the US Federal Reserve has caused cracks in several EM economies, especially those with weak current account positions and looming political concerns.

The Argentine Peso, Brazilian Real, Mexican Peso, Turkish Lira, Russian Ruble and more recently the South African Rand have all depreciated significantly.

Many central banks have responded by hiking rates to combat the outflows and some are considering and in fact, would be compelled to do so.
